HAIR LOSS – WHAT IS IT AND WHAT ARE THE TYPES OF MALE PATTERN BALDNESS?

balding man

By the term hair loss, or in short, accelerated baldness, we understand the loss of large amounts of hair in a relatively short period of time, which can have diverse causes. At the same time, there are several types of baldness that a man may encounter in his life, and the most common are:

- male pattern androgenetic alopecia , abbreviated as AGA (androgenetic alopecia), which manifests as hair loss primarily in the temporal and frontal regions;
- alopecia areata, (alopecia areata), in the form of hairless patches appearing in various places on the head;
- post-traumatic alopecia, resulting from various diseases, the characteristic symptom of which is precisely accelerated and excessive hair loss.

HAIR LOSS – WHICH OF ITS CAUSES MUST FOLICERIN SHAMPOO DEAL WITH?

Before you decide to use Folicerin shampoo in the fight against your hair loss, it is worth finding out what factors are responsible for it. There are really quite a few of them, most of them can easily be dealt with by the active ingredients of the shampoo, and the most commonly pointed out by experts, including professional trichologists, are:

- improper hair care, negligence of a hygienic nature, consisting not only of too infrequent washing of the head, but also the use of improperly selected cosmetics for this purpose;
- inadequate diet, having a negative impact not only on the increased risk of being overweight or morbidly obese, but also on the weakening of the structure of the hair, which becomes fragile, brittle and begins to fall out by the handful. Such a diet lacks, among other things, vitamin A, B vitamins, coenzyme Q10 and silicon;
- hormonal imbalances in the body, in the case of alopecia having to do with disorders in the secretion of testosterone, the male sex hormone, which, mutating into dihydrotestosterone (DHT), becomes the cause of androgenic alopecia;
- prolonged stress causing the secretion of excessive amounts of the “stress hormone,” cortisol;
- scalp diseases such as psoriasis, atopic or seborrheic dermatitis or acne;
- regular use of certain groups of medications that have the side effect of hair loss, including anticoagulants;
- smoking large amounts of cigarettes and drinking alcohol;
- overexposure of the head to the sun, and UV radiation not only weakens the hair, it can also become a cause of skin cancer.

FOLICERIN – WHAT INGREDIENTS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THIS SHAMPOO?

The basis for the effectiveness of any product designed to stop hair loss is a properly selected composition. This is exactly what the shampoo has Folicerin and it is a unique, strong in action, but at the same time gentle formula composed of selected active ingredients. It has been tailored precisely to the needs of men facing the problem of baldness. Most importantly, they are 100% natural, of plant origin and have no side effects.

The Nano T-Growth Hair formula was created from them, which can be considered revolutionary. It not only quickly stops hair loss, but also stimulates the growth of new, thicker and stronger hair. The formula contains properly selected doses of such plant active substances as:

BLACK PEPPER SEED EXTRACT

Black pepper is an exotic spice commonly used not only in cooking, but also in natural medicine. The constituents contained in these small black seeds, primarily piperine, an alkaloid found in the outer shell of the seeds, promote many health aspects. Not only do they support weight loss by burning excess body fat faster, they also have a beneficial effect on weakened and brittle hair. The action of black pepper extract in Folicerin shampoo is to inhibit the activity of the 5-alpha-reductase enzyme. Its excess leads precisely to the conversion of testosterone into its harmful mutation, dihydrotestosterone. It causes damage and subsequent death of hair follicles and roots, becoming, among other things, the cause of androgenetic alopecia.

GINSENG ROOT EXTRACT

Another important ingredient in the Folicerin hair loss inhibiting shampoo is an extract extracted from ginseng root. The properties of this plant are already legendary, although the presence of many nutrients is responsible for its effects. The root contains, among others:

- vitamin A;
- B vitamins, thiamine (B1), riboflavin (B2), cobalamin (B12);
- vitamin C, a natural antioxidant;
- vitamin E;
- minerals: zinc, phosphorus, silicon, magnesium, manganese, molybdenum, potassium, sulfur, calcium and iron;
- essential oils;
- phytosterols;
- phenolic compounds.

Thanks to these substances, ginseng root helps strengthen and rebuild weakened hair structure. At the same time, it accelerates the regeneration of weakened hair by affecting the hair follicles at the cellular level.

BURDOCK ROOT AND LEAF EXTRACT

The importance of plants in the daily care of hair prone to hair loss cannot be underestimated. That's why the shampoo includes burdock extract, another source of ingredients needed by hair. They are provided primarily by the leaves and root, including such valuable compounds as:

- vitamin A, vitamin C and vitamin E;
- organic acids;
- plant sterols;
- phosphorus and sulfur salts;
- flavonoids;
- inulin, a natural prebiotic.

These are responsible for antiseptic, antibacterial, epithelial, antifungal and anti-inflammatory properties. Burdock has a beneficial effect on the scalp, restoring its proper structure, nourishing it down to the deepest layers and improving microcirculation.

LICORICE ROOT EXTRACT

The last plant ingredient in Folicerin shampoo, which also co-creates the unique Nano T-Growth Hair formula, is licorice root extract. Its healing properties have been known since ancient times and, as with the other ingredients, are due to its content of valuable nutritional compounds:

- triterpene saponins;
- flavonoids;
- coumarins;
- polysaccharides;
- essential oils;
- phytoestrogens;
- glycyrrhizinic acid.

Thanks to them, licorice has anti-inflammatory, antifungal and antibacterial effects. It accelerates the regeneration of damaged scalp cells, which is also important for preventing hair loss, while stimulating the hair growth cycle.

NV CAFFEINE ECO

Another unique formula in the composition of this shampoo is based on an equally unique form of caffeine. It is encapsulated in miniature capsules in biopolymer particles with a diameter of more than 200 nm. and this allows to increase their stability and effectiveness on hair. Caffeine strengthens weakened hair follicles, takes care of their proper nutrition, improves microcirculation in the scalp. As a result, it creates an ideal environment not only for stopping hair loss, but also for rapid growth of new hair.
