A Look At The Natural Ingredients In Hydrossentials

and The Science Behind Them

Hydrossential serum boasts a range of natural ingredients that work together to provide visible results. By exploring the natural components of Hydrossential, we can gain insight into why it has become a popular choice among those seeking a natural and effective skincare solution and whether it's right for you or not:

Gotu Kola

Gotu Kola is a small, herbaceous plant that belongs to the Apiaceae family. It is native to the wetlands of Asia, particularly India, China, Japan, and Indonesia. The plant features slender stems with fan-shaped leaves that are bright green in color.

Triterpenoids are bioactive compounds found in Gotu Kola that possess anti-inflammatory and wound-healing properties. They help reduce skin inflammation and accelerate the healing process, making Gotu Kola beneficial for various skin conditions.

Moreover, Gotu Kola helps widen blood vessels, allowing for better blood flow. This enhanced circulation promotes skin cell regeneration, resulting in a more youthful and radiant complexion.

Rosemary Oil

This essential oil is extracted from the leaves of the rosemary plant, which is native to the Mediterranean region. Its addition to Hydrossential is aimed at boosting skin health and promoting a healthy, glowing complexion.

One of the key reasons why rosemary oil is added to Hydrossential is its potent antioxidant properties. Furthermore, rosemary oil has been found to have antimicrobial properties, making it beneficial for individuals with acne-prone skin.

A study published in the Journal of Dermatological Science investigated the antimicrobial activity of rosemary oil against acne-causing bacteria and found that it exhibited significant inhibitory effects.

Geranium Oil

Geranium oil is a pale yellow or greenish-colored liquid with a floral and slightly sweet aroma. When applied topically, geranium oil works on multiple levels to improve the overall health and appearance of the skin.

One of the primary ways geranium oil promotes radiant skin is by balancing sebum production. When sebum production is excessive or imbalanced, it can lead to oily skin, clogged pores, and acne breakouts. Geranium oil helps regulate sebum production, resulting in a more balanced complexion and a reduction in breakouts.

Furthermore, geranium oil acts as a natural astringent, tightening and toning the skin. It helps minimize the appearance of enlarged pores, giving the skin a smoother and more refined texture. This astringent property is due to the oil's ability to constrict blood vessels, reducing the flow of fluids and diminishing puffiness.

Sage Extract

One of the primary reasons why Sage Extract is added to skincare products like Hydrossential is due to its antioxidant properties which help in reducing the signs of aging, including wrinkles, fine lines, and dullness.

Furthermore, Sage Extract has been found to have antimicrobial properties. A study conducted by researchers at the University of Belgrade in Serbia demonstrated the effectiveness of Sage Extract against various strains of bacteria and fungi.

The study concluded that Sage Extract exhibited significant antimicrobial activity, making it a valuable ingredient for promoting a healthy skin microbiome and preventing skin infections.

Japanese Witch Hazel

Japanese Witch Hazel, scientifically known as Hamamelis japonica, is a deciduous shrub native to Japan. The shrub typically grows up to six feet in height and has attractive, vibrant yellow flowers that bloom during late winter to early spring.

The astringent properties of Japanese Witch Hazel help regulate excess oil production, making it suitable for individuals with oily or acne-prone skin.

A study published in 2019 examined the effects of Japanese Witch Hazel extracts on skin health. The researchers conducted a randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled trial involving 60 participants.

After a four-week treatment period, the researchers observed significant improvements in skin elasticity, firmness, and hydration on the side treated with Japanese Witch Hazel extract.

Jojoba Oil

One of the key reasons why jojoba oil is highly regarded in skincare is its resemblance to sebum. Our skin produces sebum to moisturize and protect itself. However, as we age, the production of sebum decreases, leading to dryness and other skin concerns.

Jojoba oil acts as a natural moisturizer, providing the skin with the necessary hydration it needs to stay supple and healthy.

The working principle of jojoba oil lies in its molecular structure. Unlike other oils, which consist of triglycerides, jojoba oil is composed of liquid wax esters. These esters are similar to the sebum produced by our skin, making it easier for the oil to penetrate the skin's surface and deliver its nourishing properties deep into the layers.

Aloe Barbadensis

When Aloe Barbadensis gel is applied to the skin, the polysaccharides form a protective barrier on the skin's surface. This barrier helps to lock in moisture, preventing water loss and promoting hydration. As a result, the skin appears plump and supple, giving it a radiant and healthy glow.

Additionally, the antioxidants found in Aloe Barbadensis gel help to scavenge free radicals through a process called electron donation.
