EYELASHES – WHAT THEY ARE AND WHAT IS THEIR FUNCTION

woman's eyes

Speaking of eyelashes, we mean the hair growing on the eyelids in the number of about 150 – 250 on the upper and 50 – 150 on the lower eyelids, the life cycle of which, that is the period in which they grow and fall out, is from 100 to 150 days. In addition to being, with proper care, a real decoration, they also have a purely practical function. There is no denying that our eye is delicate and susceptible to damage caused by contaminants that may get into it and those caused by drying of the eyeball. It therefore requires adequate protection and this is provided by eyelashes, which protect against dust, sand, mites, water and UV radiation. In terms of structure they do not differ from other hair, 90 percent of their composition are proteins, melanin and keratin and the remaining 10 percent is just water. Keratin is the basic building material responsible for hair's structure and strength, while melanin gives it its colour.

EYELASHES – WHAT FACTORS CAUSE THEM TO WEAKEN

As any other hair on our body, also eyelashes can weaken over time, become brittle and fragile. The effect of this is only one, they begin to fall out, which not only looks extremely unsightly, but also increases the risk of damage to the eyeball. There are many causes of weakening eyelashes, most of them can be dealt with Revamin Lash and most specialists point to:

- Improper diet, which lacks vitamins and minerals essential for the proper growth of healthy and strong hair;

- developing inflammatory conditions, such as conjunctivitis, which is often the result of allergies, for example to contact lenses;
- poorly selected facial care products which may cause eye irritation;
- Diseases causing hormonal disturbances in the body, primarily affecting the thyroid gland;
- autoimmune diseases causing e.g. accelerated hair loss, alopecia areata or telogenetic alopecia;
- taking certain medications and aggressive therapies such as chemotherapy used in cancer;
- Stress, which can disrupt practically the entire body;
- exposing the eyes to adverse weather conditions, frost, moisture, the aforementioned UV radiation and smog;
- mechanical shortening of eyelashes, which certainly will not make them grow back longer;
- wearing false eyelashes glued on for too long.

REVAMIN LASH – AN IMPORTANT ELEMENT OF EVERYDAY EYELASH CARE

Taking care of eyelashes requires a lot of attention and the use of appropriate care procedures, the performance of which should become a daily habit. It is necessary to remember about:

- thorough washing off makeup, which in no case should be left on overnight, and the face should be washed with mild agents adapted to the pH of the skin and not irritating to the eyes;
- using an equally gentle make-up remover and giving the eyes a rest from time to time
- avoiding heavy rubbing of the eyes, which not only causes redness and painful irritation, but also weakens the eyelash hairs themselves, which may begin to fall out;

- regular eyelash care with the use of high quality conditioners, among which Revamin Lash is recommended by specialists.
